Biofuel facility turns waste into 'opportunity'

Green garbage. City will soon divert 90%
of trash from landfills

RYAN
ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

The city opened a first-of-its-kind waste facility Wednesday that will create biofuels out of Edmonton's trash.

Mayor Don Iveson said the facility marked another chapter in the city's long history of rising to the challenge of dealing with garbage.

He said Edmonton will be sending little to landfill when the facility is in full operation.

"We think 90 per cent of our trash will go to some higher purpose," he said.

Through recycling and composting, Edmonton already diverts 60 per cent of waste from landfills, but the new facility will expand on that.

Enerkem is paid $50 per tonne to process Edmonton's waste into methanol, which the company can sell as a biofuel. The city also spent $40 million building a facility to pre-process the waste to make it ready for the facility, and the operation costs of that facility add an additional $25 per tonne.

In total, the city's cost is about $75 per tonne, which Iveson said is in line with what it would cost to simply landfill the waste.

"For the same cost we're creating jobs, we're creating renewable sources of energy and we're reducing our impact on the environment," he said.

Enerkem CEO Vincent Chornet said all cities are going to be looking at what Edmonton is doing.

Enerkem CEO Vincent Chornet and Mayor Don Iveson stand in front of a new plant that will turn the city's trash into biofuel. RYAN TUMILTY/METRO

"It's by far one of the most significant developments the waste and biofuel refinery sectors have seen yet," he said.

Chornet said the gasification process turns garbage into something cities can use, instead of something they are burdened with.

"Garbage is now a non-issue. It's an opportunity," he said.

Advocates split on prostitution bill

Changes to the country's prostitution laws were getting mixed local reaction Wednesday from sex workers and people who advocate for them.

The changes, which the government has been forced to impose because of a recent Supreme Court decision, include provisions that would make it illegal to buy, but not sell, sex.

Selling sex in public places would still be illegal, as would advertising sexual services.

Monica, a sex worker with nearly 30 years experience and a member of group representing other workers, says the bill disappoints.

"I find it very frustrating that I can sell sexual services, but I can't say so," she said.

Monica says criminalizing buyers creates some real concerns for sex workers.

"When I interact with the buyer he's now breaking the law, so how am I not now being an accessory to his crime?" she asked.

Kate Quinn, with the Centre to End All Sexual Exploitation, says she can see some positives including support for women who want to leave the sex trade and the provision outlawing the purchase of sex.

"This is sending a strong message that it's not OK to buy sex," she said.

She says the rules around selling sex in public are troubling, however, because of the risk to street prostitutes.

"What has changed for the really vulnerable street-involved woman under these new laws?" she asked.

Crime. Suspicious death spurs police investigation

Police are investigating a suspicious death after a body was found behind a west-end bar on Wednesday afternoon.

According to police, a woman's body was found near 174 Street and Stony Plain Road around 1:45 p.m. inside a storage shed near a bar called MacTaggart's Twisted Kilt.

Police were on scene for hours gathering evidence in a driving rainstorm. Forensics officers targeted several spots on the ground with evidence markers and appeared to be collecting items in evidence bags.

The shed, which appeared to be a typical garden shed, was located just steps from the rear door of the bar. The bar was closed and appeared to have been that way for some time.

Police had a wide area cordoned off, including a business across the street from the bar's rear door.

An autopsy has not been scheduled at this time.

Beds on the bus allow travellers to snooze

Lie back and relax.

Maritime Bus Alberta starts operation between Fort McMurray and Edmonton

A Quebec company is hoping to redefine travelling in style for people making the trek between Edmonton and Fort McMurray.

Maritime Bus Alberta will start service on Thursday with trips between Edmonton and Fort McMurray running for $139.99. The bus offers free Wi-Fi, panoramic windows and, perhaps most importantly for tired workers, beds.

Another perk

The bus will also offer door-to-door service for passengers from several major hotels.

Maritime Bus Alberta president Jean Dupont stands inside one of his company's buses that allows travellers to sleep on their way back and forth from Fort McMurray. RYAN TUMILTY/METRO Company president Jean Dupont says they have been operating three similar buses in Quebec, but there's a real need for the service here in Alberta.

"We decided to come here to launch a service between Fort McMurray and Edmonton. We felt there was a niche market, so that's why we're here," he said.

Dupont says the emphasis is going to be on service, with an attendant on the bus to help passengers get in and out of bed and with snacks and refreshments.

The bus seats 32 but sleeps only 24, so he plans to limit the number of passengers so everyone can grab a nap if they need to. He says they expect the ability to grab a few hours rest will be the big selling feature.

Dupont says they have done very little advertising because they want to make sure everything is working as expected before they ramp up.

"We want to start slowly. We want to make sure the service is up and running."

Inner-city youth document lives with photographs

Teens take up the lens. 'There's more to it than what you see,' says U of A nursing PhD grad

LEAH GERMAIN
leah.germain@metronews.ca

It took ten months and the shared experiences of six Edmonton at-risk youth to make Margot Jackson realize something needed to change.

As a PhD student in nursing at the University of Alberta, Jackson's doctoral research saw her spend just shy of a year listening and learning from six local females, ranging in ages 12 to 22-years-old, about their experiences living in the inner city.

For Jackson, the simplest way to share those experiences was through a lens and so each participant was given a camera to document their life.

"You learn all of these terrible stories from the kids," Jackson said, adding each of the youths had suffered varying levels of abuse, homelessness, violence and mental health issues.

"There's more to it than what you see."

Jackson, who graduated earlier this week, said she wants to take her experiences from the last year to change the way Edmonton at-risk-youth are perceived.

"We put a lot of money towards other things in this city and we seem to forget that kids starting at 10, 12 and 14-years-old run into a lot of problems and there still needs to be services," Jackson said.

A driver who caused a crash that killed four high school football players in northern Alberta has been granted full parole.

The Parole Board of Canada says Brenden Holubowich, 24, is to be released June 15. He was sentenced to three years in February 2013 after pleading guilty to dangerous driving causing death and dangerous driving causing bodily harm.

His pickup truck crashed into a car carrying five members of the Warriors football team from Grande Prairie Composite High School in 2011.

North end. Shooting victim ID'd by city police

Police have confirmed the identity of the 22-year-old man shot Monday night in north Edmonton.

Sultanbek Abdimamat Uulu succumbed to his gunshot wound Wednesday in hospital, Metro has learned.

According to police, Uulu was a passenger in an SUV Monday night when the vehicle was shot at. The driver of the car located nearby emergency crews, who were responding to an alleged home invasion and second shooting near 136 Street and 113A Avenue, to assist the wounded Uulu.

Another shooting

A 44-year-old man was also shot Monday night, but was in stable condition at time of press.

EPS homicide detectives are leading the investigation into the shooting and Uulu's death.

According to court documents, Uulu was found guilty of possession of a controlled substance and failure to appear in court in November 2010.

Redford's 'sky palace'

NDP hunting for Tory paper trail

Alberta's NDP is asking the privacy commissioner to investigate why there is no paper trail on the cancellation of a penthouse suite for former premier Alison Redford.

NDP Infrastructure critic Deron Bilous says a freedom of information request on the so-called "sky palace" turned up nothing. Bilous says that suggests a coverup or a bid by the governing PCs to keep a politically embarrassing project off the official record.

Privacy commissioner Jill Clayton is already investigating allegations that under Redford, the government sought to interfere in the freedom of information process to limit the political fallout.

With the Edmonton Pride Festival kicking off on Friday, Mr. Gay Canada Edmonton Lonny-jay Renard says the city has really embraced the festival in recent years.

"Edmonton's community is amazing. The Pride festival alone ... has grown larger and larger every year so our community is very much thriving," he said.

Mr. Gay World

The Mr. Gay World takes place August 25-31 in Rome.

Celebrating the LGBTQ community is something near and dear to Renard's heart, who represented the city for the last year as Mr. Gay Canada Edmonton, speaking to local groups and schools about community issues.

"I went out, talked about my experiences and how to deal with bullying and other issues pertaining to LGBTQ," he said.

Advocacy work is also being done on the national scale, as local Mr. Gay Canada city leaders help Mr. Gay Canada prepare for the world competition.

"Making sure we have this representation at the Worlds just continues to demonstrate the work Canada does," said Renard.

A new set of recruits will vie for a chance to represent Canada on a global scale as the Mr. Gay Canada local competition kicks off on Friday.

Pimps and johns targeted in Tories' 'made-in-Canada' prostitution bill

Justice Minister Peter MacKay takes questions from reporters on Parliament Hill in Ottawa on Wednesday. The Conservative government has introduced legislation that targets johns and pimps. SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Legislation. New list of offences intended to reduce demand for sex services and protect sex workers: Conservatives

The Conservative government has introduced legislation to criminalize the purchase of sexual services.

The long-awaited bill would also crack down on those who reap a material benefit from prostitution.

Justice Minister Peter MacKay says the "made-in-Canada" model is aimed at targeting johns and pimps while protecting the vulnerable.

The new prostitution-related offences are intended to reduce demand for sexual services and protect those who sell such services from exploitation, as well as shield children and communities, the government says.

The bill would create new offences for:

- The purchase of sexual services and communicating in any place for that purpose.

- Receiving a financial or material benefit from the prostitution of others, including through businesses that sell the sexual services of others online or out of venues such as escort agencies, massage parlours, or strip clubs that also provide sexual services.

- Advertising the sale of sexual services in print media or on the Internet.

- Communicating for the purpose of selling sexual services in public places where a child could reasonably be expected to be present.

The legislation is the government's response to a Supreme Court of Canada decision in December that struck down key provisions of the country's prostitution laws.

While the court ruled the laws were unconstitutional, it gave the government a year to replace them.

Under the old laws, prostitution itself was legal but almost all related activities — including communicating in a public place for the purposes of prostitution, pimping and running a brothel — were criminal offences.

The new bill comes just two days after the Justice Department released the results of an online consultation which showed that a slim majority of respondents felt that buying sex should be illegal.

However, two-thirds of the more than 31,000 respondents said they thought selling sex should not be an offence.

Toronto uses tower power in branded condom rollout

Toronto unwrapped its very own city-branded condom design Wednesday, featuring the phallic point of the CN Tower and three aptly chosen city street signs: Cummer Avenue, Wood Street and Coxwell Avenue.

Toronto Public Health tweeted out the design of "condomTO" in six separate tweets, starting at 9 a.m.

A message on the condom's package reads, "No matter which way you go, put it on!"

The condom, launched by the health agency, comes two weeks before World Pride celebrations kick off in the city on June 20.

Dr. David McKeown, the city's medical officer, says the condom's main goal is to get Torontonians talking about safe sex — and using condoms.

"This is a lighthearted approach to what is a serious subject," he said. "We want to raise awareness and try something new and different to get people thinking about safer sex."

We're trying to make it something that people in Toronto will talk about."

About 60 people die from HIV in Toronto annually, he added. Using condoms is an effective way to prevent sexually transmitted diseases but statistics show many people choose not to use them.

The AIDS Committee of Toronto welcomed the move by Toronto Public Health, but pointed out only men's, not women's, condoms were available.

"The message doesn't start and end with condoms in a bowl," said spokesman Rafay Agha.

"But kudos to Toronto Public Health. The more safer-sex options people have, the better. It's also a great starting point for a conversation. Our symbol of the city is a phallic building." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The RCMP says three of its officers were killed in Moncton, N.B., by a man armed with guns and two other officers were injured as the Mounties conducted a manhunt across the city's north end on Wednesday night for the shooter.

RCMP in New Brunswick said on its Twitter feed that they were looking for 24-year-old Justin Bourque of Moncton. The police force tweeted an image of a suspect wearing military camouflage and wielding two guns.

The RCMP released its first information on the shooting at about 9:15 p.m. through Twitter.

It confirmed the deaths of the three officers on Twitter at 11 p.m., tweeting: "3 officers mortally wounded by shooter. 2 officers sustained non life threatening injuries. Shooter still actively sought."

The Horizon Health Network, the province's largest health authority, said on its Twitter feed that two patients were taken to the Moncton Hospital with gunshot wounds.

Const. Damien Theriault said police were urging people in the area to stay inside their homes and lock their doors.

Drivers were also asked to stay out of the area.

"We're advising people to stay inside until further notice," Theriault said.

Federal Public Safety Minister Steven Blaney tweeted, "Shocked by the tragedy in #Moncton. Thoughts and prayers with our frontline @rcmpgrcpolice officers and families."

Theriault said the search for the suspect was concentrated in the area of Ryan Street and Hildegarde Road.

His voicemail later said that the RCMP were searching for the suspect in the area of the Moncton Coliseum.

Sean Gallacher, who lives near the area where police were concentrating their search, said he heard what he now believes were gunshots but initially thought his daughter had dropped some toys.

George LeBlanc told a news conference it was his worst day as mayor.

"I want to offer my most sincere condolence to the families of the police officers who have been killed in the line of duty and those who are injured. It is a terrible tragedy," he said.

"We as a city must pull together as a family to support those who have suffered losses."

Based on information from the RCMP's Honour Roll page on its website, the last Mountie to die from a gunshot would be Const. Douglas Scott on Nov. 5, 2007. He was shot while responding to a call for help involving an impaired driver at Kimmirut, Nunavut.

The most recent police officer killed in the line of duty was Const. Steve Dery of the Kativik police force in northern Quebec. Dery, 27, was shot and killed after he and another constable responded to a domestic violence call on March 2, 2013.

Premier David Alward offered his thoughts and prayers to those affected by the shooting.

"I was shocked and saddened to learn of tonight's tragic situation in Moncton," he said in a statement.

Police had a number of roads in the city blocked and traffic was backed up on major arteries.

Videos aim to teach cops to assess canine behaviour

Five-part series.

Initiative comes after study determined that majority of police shootings involve dogs, usually dogs

The majority of shootings in most U.S. police departments involve animals, usually dogs, and experts say a new series of videos can help change often quick-trigger decisions fuelled by fear.

"There will be times when police need to defend themselves because they are being attacked by a dog and don't have a choice, but that is the minority of cases," said Brian Kilcommons, a Southbury, Connecticut, dog behaviourist and trainer.

He is featured in the five-part series that teaches officers to detect the warning signs of an aggressive dog and how to avoid using lethal force.

Efforts to change the way officers approach animals have emerged as dogs have become a central part of the American family and lawsuits have chipped away at the coffers of law enforcement agencies.

The free videos emerged from a 2011 study by a University of Illinois centre and non-profits including the National Canine Research Council, which promotes a better understanding of relationships with dogs.

The U.S. Department of Jus-

Canines vs. officers

Milwaukee began tallying dog shootings in its city in 2000, in response to a lawsuit.

- 48. Average number of dogs shot by police annually from 2000 to 2008.
- 28. The average number of dogs shot by police after training increased.

tice helped. The study found a majority of police shootings involved animals, but it's unknown how many dogs are shot nationwide every year.

Officers have a lot to process when they respond to something like a domestic violence report, but determining whether a dog is agitated shouldn't be overwhelming, said Bill Johnson, executive director of the National Association of Police Organizations.

In the videos, Kilcommons teaches officers to survey canine body language and not to approach a fearful dog that's low to the ground with its tail tucked and ears flat to its head. He also says to watch for warning signs such as lunging, growling and exposed teeth.

There are ways for officers to avoid using guns, including putting an object like a trash can between them and the dog, carrying food that can be thrown as a distraction, or using pepper spray, he says.

PM restarts CETA talks before G7 summit

Stephen Harper arrived Wednesday in Brussels for the G7 summit — but his first order of business was to kickstart his stalled free-trade deal with the European Union.

The prime minister met with European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso, about an hour prior to the official opening of the G7 summit, where the Ukraine-Russia crisis was set to dominate.

But Harper appeared eager to make progress towards getting a final text of the Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA).

Harper flew to Brussels to meet Barroso in a high-profile ceremony last October to sign an agreement in principle on the deal.

But the final, lawyer-approved document remains an elusive entity as some of the major irritants that stalled the protracted four-year negotiations reared their heads yet again in recent weeks.

According to EU documents, these include a disagreement over protection of intellectual property rights in the pharmaceutical sector, among other irritants.

The Harper government insists the delays are simply a matter of hammering out the precise final legal text, and are not a matter of substantive disagreement.

A stalled or scuttled deal would be politically damaging to Harper, who views a comprehensive deal with the EU's 28-country bloc to be the jewel in his crown of a series of much smaller trade agreements.

Aides to Harper, who spoke on the condition of anonymity earlier in the week, had played down any suggestion that Harper might piggyback on the G7 summit to push the trade deal. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Slain doctor a 'real servant of humanity'

Extremists. Calls for Ottawa to pressure Pakistan to better protect minorities after Canadian heart doctor targeted

A Canadian cardiologist slain by gunmen in Pakistan is being remembered as a selfless humanitarian who was targeted for belonging to a religious minority.

A burial ceremony for Mehdi Ali Qamar saw impassioned calls for Ottawa to pressure the Pakistani government to better protect religious minorities against extremism.

Qamar, an Ahmadiyya Muslim who had returned to the country to do volunteer work at a hospital, was gunned down May 26 in central Pakistan in front of his wife and two-year-old son.

His nephew, Nasir Chaudhary, read a family statement calling Qamar a "real servant of humanity who never discriminated against his patients."

Relatives remembered him for always cracking jokes and penning poems about his love of life.

Ahmadiyya Muslim Jama'at Canada president Lal

Khan Malik said Qamar was "murdered because of his faith" and said the Harper government must urge Pakistan to "stand up to extremists and promote freedom of religion."

Malik said "there is a pattern to these murders," saying 137 other Ahmadiyyas have been killed in the south Asian country in the last four years.

"His murder is a direct result of the state-sponsored extremism that is practised in Pakistan."

Malik said Qamar, who lived in Ohio the last 10 years, "redeemed mankind through his good works."

Brothers arrested for stoning sister to death

Pakistani police have arrested two brothers who participated in a mob attack during which their sister was stoned to death for marrying against the family's wishes, a police spokesman said Wednesday.

Nayab Haider said the two men, Ghulam Ali and Zahid Ali, were arrested from a home in the eastern Punjab province following an intensive manhunt.

Authorities arrested the woman's father after the attack, and four other people were arrested last Friday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 13-year-old daughter of poor Indian farmers who became the youngest girl to climb Mount Everest said Wednesday that she "shed joyful tears" at the summit after a grueling climb across difficult terrain and personal fear.

Nepal requires climbers to be at least 16 years old to scale its peaks, but Malavath Poorna said she and a team of Nepalese guides climbed the 8,850-metre mountain on May 25 from the northern side in Tibet. There are no age restrictions in China.

Five dead babies found in basement

Finnish police have arrested a 35-year-old woman on suspicion of manslaughter after finding five dead babies in an apartment building, authorities said Wednesday.

Officers found the bodies in "badly smelly packages" Tuesday in a basement cupboard of an apartment building in the city of Oulu after they were alerted to the scene by emergency services.

Leinonen said the woman couldn't give a clear motive for keeping and storing what he said appeared to be fetuses for so long. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taliban. U.S. woman and her Canadian husband travelling in Afghanistan went missing 20 months ago

Child's fate unknown

Caitlan Coleman, 28, refers to her child in the videos, but no child is shown.

- The grandparents say they don't know the name or gender of the child, who would be about 18 months old.

The family of a pregnant American woman who went missing in Afghanistan in late 2012 with her Canadian husband received two videos last year in which the couple asked the U.S. government to help free them from Taliban captors, The Associated Press has learned.

The videos, each under two minutes long, offer the only clues about what happened to Caitlan Coleman and Joshua Boyle after they lost touch with their families 20 months ago while travelling near Kabul.

The video files were emailed to Coleman's father last July and September by an Afghan man who identified himself as having ties to the Taliban but who has been out of contact for several months. In one video, a subdued Coleman appeals for help.

"I would ask that my family and my government do everything that they can to bring my husband, child and I to safety and freedom," the 28-year-old says while seated beside her husband, whose beard is long and untrimmed. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sweet to sour. Burt of Burt's Bees buzzed back to Maine after love affair with staffer

Burt Shavitz stands on his property in Parkman, Maine. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Conventional wisdom suggests the Burt behind Burt's Bees left the company after he became disillusioned with the corporate world in North Carolina and wanted to return to his solitary life in Maine.

The reality, Burt Shavitz says, is that he was forced out by co-founder Roxanne Quimby after he had an affair with an employee.

So the man on the Burt's Bees logo that promises "Earth-friendly natural personal care products" ended up with 37 acres in Maine, and an undisclosed sum of money.

And he's not complaining. "In the long run, I got the land, and land is everything. Land is positively everything.

And money is nothing really worth squabbling about. This is what puts people six feet under. You know, I don't need it," he told a filmmaker on the property where the company was launched in the 1980s.

The reclusive beekeeper whose simple life became complicated by his status as a corporate icon is now the subject of a documentary, Burt's Buzz, which opens Friday in cities including New York, Los Angeles, Miami, Chicago, Phoenix and Cleveland.

Interviewed by The Associated Press on his land in Maine, Shavitz declined to discuss his relationship with Quimby.

America catching up to Canada with card microchips

Sam's Club on Wednesday said it will become the first mass retailer in the U.S. to offer a credit card using a fraud-detering microchip.

Visa and MasterCard are pushing for the adoption of microchips, which they say have helped reduce fraud in Canada, Mexico and most of Western Europe.

The chip technology hasn't been widely adopted in the U.S. because of costs and disputes over how the network would operate. Several recent data breaches at retailers helped garner support among retailers for cards using microchips.

White-glove service ... for $21,500/night

As the gap between the wealthiest travellers and everyone else has widened, high-rollers are looking for more pampering. Case in point: This Abu Dhabi Suite at the St. Regis in Abu Dhabi. ## Lifestyles of the rich. As the 99% book rooms on Airbnb, more hotels are catering to the 1%

Private elevators, personal shopping assistants, six-bedroom suites with their own postal codes. Even helipads. This is what the super-rich have come to expect from hotels.

For others, vacation now means renting someone's apartment, a spare room, maybe just a couch — anything to save on the cost of a hotel.

As the gap between the wealthiest travellers and everyone else has widened, so has the way people are experiencing vacations. The wealthy are looking for ever-more pampering. Many others are seeking new ways to economize.

And the lodging industry is adapting — at the high and low ends — to meet the diverging needs.

Luxury hotels are catering to financial elites from Russia, China, Brazil or the Middle East who now routinely hop around the world and don't mind dropping $20,000 US a night for a glamorous accommodation.

During the Great Recession, many resorts dropped "resort and spa" from their name. The idea was to appeal to corporate organizers who didn't want trips to seem extravagant. Excess now appears back in style.

With the recently opened St. Regis Abu Dhabi in the United Arab Emirates, architects considered how much privacy to provide its most sumptuous suites, says Paul James, head of Starwood Hotels and Resorts' luxury properties.

"Part of the Abu Dhabi conversation was: 'Where does the helicopter land?'" James says. The elite traveller's experience was precisely what the Rosewood London had in mind when it opened its Grand Manor House Wing in December. The six-bedroom complex is $42,000 US a night and offers three living rooms, a library and a dining table for eight.

GAME OF BLEEDING RAINBOWS & BAD ACCENTS

Game of Thrones is one of the most intensely loved shows in the history of television, which is interesting for a show that does not love you back.

The sword-and-sorcery-and-rape-and-decapitation fantasy series has its moments of joy and hope, but they're mostly there so they can be snatched away from you, like a child's toy, your shocked face part of the latest YouTube reaction montage.

Author George R.R. Martin wrote the books the series is based on, so he can be blamed for most of the emotional wallop. Then the show producers looked at a book series full of sexual assault, decapitation, castration and people getting slaughtered at weddings and said, "Hey, could be worse. Let's make it worse!"

It all came to a head in the most recent episode as the emotional and physical pain combined perfectly when (spoiler!) a much-loved character had his skull slowly crushed ON SCREEN, destroying hope and brains in equal measure.

HE SAYS
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

(Double spoiler!: He died.)

The impact of that scene had me thinking about what Martin could have done with some of television's most famous programs.

If all TV were like Game of Thrones ...

*If Martin had written Seinfeld, the Master of My Domain episode would have been about who can go the longest without losing their genitals.

*If Martin had written Reading Rainbow, the theme song would have been, "Butterfly in the sky/Loses its wings and dies/Dare to look/Within my book/A Bleeding Rainbow (death by crossbow!)"

*If Martin had written WKRP, Les Nessman's cuts would have been fatal.

*If Martin had written The Mary Tyler Moore Show, Mary would have thrown her hat in the air and been hit by a truck.

*If Martin had written The Wire, the mayor of Baltimore would have been a conniving narcissist with unbridled lust for power and women, played by an Irish actor with a deeply unconvincing accent.

*If Martin had written Friends, one episode would have been called The One About the Incestuous Rape Over the Barely Warm Corpse of Their Child.

*If Martin had written The X-Files, Scully would have said dragons don't exist while a dragon was eating her.

*If Martin had written Freaks and Geeks, it would have been Carrie.

*If Martin had written The Daily Show with Jon Stewart, your Moment of Zen would have been the anguished screams of the dying.

*If Martin had written The Larry Sanders Show, it would have been exactly the same. He loves that guy.

As you can see, I'm sort of obsessed. I feel like if the show has gotten us this invested, it must take a happy turn soon, right? I've got a good feeling about next week. And if the good guys don't start winning, I swear, heads will roll.

Felines: 'The universal mode of communication'

SVETLANA PETROVA
Artist based in St. Petersburg, Russia

After her mother died, artist Svetlana Petrova went into a deep depression. A friend suggested dressing up Zarathustra, the kitty Petrova inherited from her mom, in costumes for a photo session as a pick-me-up. But the cat was so fat that he couldn't fit into anything. Instead, Petrova photoshopped him into works of art. Metro sat down with Petrova to get more details.

Are you a big fan of memes?

I love the concept. If I were to return to university I'd write a thesis on it. But I want to make memes that are pretty. Many memes are just plain ugly.

Why do cats have such appeal?

Cats are the universal mode of communication. We may all speak different languages but we're all lovers of cats. They're a way of bringing us together to do good. For example, two years ago there was Hank, a cat that ran for the U.S. senate. For his campaign, I helped design some fake dollar bills with his picture on them. The project raised a lot of money for animal charities in the U.S. and Russia. So we managed to do good, not through people but through a cat. METRO

METRO CUSTOM PUBLISHING H&M

COLLECTION IS DIVERSE AND TRENDY

H&M is well-known in Canada and around the world for great fashion and quality at good prices. And beginning June 12, that attention to style will extend to the home: H&M will begin a new phase in its Canadian operations with an exciting, chic and affordable line of housewares in the H&M store in West Edmonton Mall.

Like H&M clothing, the home collection offers many different styles, colours and looks to match your fashion personality.

"Whether you're into an Aztec pattern, something more girly, a monochromatic look or something whimsical, the collection is diverse and trendy," says H&M spokesperson Emily Scarlett. "It includes items for the bedroom, bathroom, living room and kitchen, plus seasonal items and goods for special occasions like the holiday season."

The H&M Home collection focuses on textiles, tablewares and accessories, everything from decorative cushions and tablecloths, to bath mats and coffee mugs, to duvet covers and candles.

What sets it apart?

"I would definitely say the price point — it's very competitive," Scarlett says. "H&M is famous for that, and it's evident in this collection, too. You can easily update your home for every season in a super trendy way. There's something for every taste and decor."

For the kitchen, one of the popular lines is the French Bistro collection.

"It's very much about monochromatic, natural linens in items from aprons to table cloths to bread boxes. For people who enjoy a bit of whimsy, animals are big in our collections, too."

Kitchenwares start at $5.95.

Cushion covers for the living room are also a big hit.

"You can get something trendy or basic to dress up your throw pillows for every season very inexpensively," Scarlett says. "The covers come in every colour, print and trend for as little as $5.95.

They're hugely popular."

Blankets and throws start as low as $14.95.

For the bath, you can pull together a cohesive look with shower curtains, towels and bath mats in a variety of interesting colours and prints.

"We have lots of great bathroom looks and the accessories to connect it all, starting at $5.95. And for the bedroom, stylish duvet covers that make a statement start for as little as $29.95 for a single bed and comes with pillow cases."

Check out the home collection at H&M in the West Edmonton Mall starting at noon on June 12.

A unique launch event

June 12 marks the beginning of a new era for H&M in Canada with the launch of H&M Home at West Edmonton Mall. While the line is new to Canada, it's already a big success in other markets.

"H&M Home was originally launched in Scandinavia back in 2009 with a small collection," says H&M spokesperson Emily Scarlett. "It was really well-received and quickly gained momentum. Since then, the line has grown and we've introduced H&M Home to stores in other countries, including the U.K., France and the U.S. We're excited to finally bring the line to Canada."

Prior to the store opening, H&M has a unique launch event planned at dc3 Art Projects. Entitled Home Is Where the HeART is, pieces from the collection will be on display for a preview event Saturday and Sunday (noon to 5 p.m. each day). There will also be free giveaways for visitors. The store opens its doors at noon on June 12.

"We'll be featuring our collection, which includes our new summer line. We're expecting lots of excitement and we hope everyone will come out and see the amazing products in the collection."

And what are the plans for H&M Home in the future?

"We had a great opportunity when we were renovating our West Edmonton Mall store, and we felt it was a good time to test the collection in the Canadian market."

Future plans include extending the line to other locations throughout the country and an e-commerce site.

New feline-friendly festival lets the cat out of the bag

International Cat Festival. Organizer says it's about time Edmonton got a chance to celebrate its furry pals

JENNIFER LARAWAY
Jennifer Laraway
edmonton@metronews.ca

I'm not one to throw stones in a glass house, so let me start with a confession: I have been told by a few people I am one more adoption away from being branded as a crazy pet lady. My fur family includes two rescue puppies and an earless cat. Yes, an earless cat. As a stray, Lola lost her ears and tip of her tail to severe frostbite. She is also a black cat, and black cats tend to be adopted less often thanks to the bad-luck myth. With many odds stacked against her, we developed a unique bond. It's a bond only other cat parents can shamelessly understand.

That bond is why Linda Hoang, proud cat mom and social media guru, decided it was time for Edmonton to have its first official cat festival. "I was inspired to create the Edmonton International Cat Festival after seeing the success of the Internet Cat Video Film Festival that drew more than 10,000 people to their event just by getting people together to watch cat videos," Hoang says. "I have always been fairly active in the community, or I try to be, and organizing an event to support an important cause was something that had been on my mind for a while."

The Edmonton International Cat Festival is a one-day-only event on Saturday, June 7, and takes place at the NAIT Shaw Theatre (11762 106 Street). Guests are asked not to bring their own pets, although cats from Edmonton's Humane Society will be in attendance. Supporting the society was especially important to Hoang as she planned the festival.

"Cats are truly a passion for me and I believe they are a passion and a huge part of the lives of so many Edmontonians. I believe this festival fills a niche. I believe Edmonton was missing a festival like this. It makes complete sense to me that an Edmonton cat festival exists and thrives here based on the reaction I've been getting leading up to the festival," she says.

Hoang notes 100 per cent of profits from ticket sales will go to the Edmonton Humane Society.

Details

Tickets are $15 and available from edmontoncatfest.com.

- Pets are not permitted.
- Event runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at NAIT Shaw Theatre on June 7.

Angelina Jolie stars in Maleficent. DISNEY

Angelina Jolie. Actress hints Cleopatra could be her last role

While making the rounds to promote Maleficent, Angelina Jolie has indicated her desire to scale back her acting career and focus on writing, directing and UN humanitarian work.

At a new career high, as Maleficent opened atop the worldwide box office, the 37-year-old has made further statements hinting at her definitive retirement from acting.

Questioned by the BBC

on her upcoming performance as Cleopatra, Jolie commented that the role was particularly challenging.

"She's complicated, it's complicated to get this one right ... I imagine the preparation for it is going to be big," she stated. "It's one of those that you think maybe that's the one you put everything into and that's where you end it, that's where you finish — in a great way. What could you do beyond that one?"

Last month, at a press conference in London, the celebrity actress hinted that she was planning to scale back her acting career.

"I'm able to be selective and I would like to focus more on writing and directing, and above all I would like to focus more on my work with the UN and with PSVI (the Preventing Sexual Violence Initiative)."

Angelina Jolie plays the title role in Maleficent, which debuted in U.S. theatres on May 30. She is slated to star alongside her spouse Brad Pitt in a new project based on a script she wrote, and to play the historical figure Cleopatra in a feature directed by Ang Lee.

In the meantime, Jolie is putting the final touches on her second feature film as a director, Unbroken, which is set for U.S. release on December 25. AFP

Lionsgate plans travelling Hunger Games exhibit

Before opening a potential theme park devoted to its popular Hunger Games franchise, Lionsgate plans to launch a travelling exhibit based on the movie, the Hollywood Reporter reveals.

Lionsgate is striking while the iron is hot, hoping to cash in on the popularity of its franchise in new ways. The studio has hired theme park creator Thinkwell Group to develop a travelling exhibit based on The Hunger Games, launching in 2015. First mentioned last year, plans for a theme park based on the franchise are still on the table, although the studio has yet to choose a location. AFP

Lucasfilm

Trank pegged to direct one of upcoming Star Wars spinoffs

Josh Trank will direct one of the planned stand-alone Star Wars films.

Lucasfilm announced Wednesday that the 30-year-old filmmaker will helm one of the two announced Star Wars spinoffs being made outside of the third trilogy.

An earlier announced spinoff is to be led by Godzilla director Gareth Edwards.

Trank is the director of 2012's found-footage-style science fiction thriller Chronicle. He currently is working on The Fantastic Four, the superhero team-up reboot scheduled for release next year.

Leaving fans in the dark, Lucasfilm gave no details on the subject of the newly announced Star Wars film.

J.J. Abrams is currently in production on Star Wars: Episode VII, which will follow The Return of the Jedi in chronology.

Homeland. Corey Stoll joins series for fall season

The actor who played a bad-boy congressman on House of Cards will appear in the fourth season of Showtime's political thriller series Homeland, which is slated to premiere this fall.

For its next cycle, Homeland is reshuffling the cards in the casting department.

To compensate for the loss of its male lead played by Damian Lewis, the series is bringing in Corey Stoll to play a new character. The 38-year-old actor will take on the role of Sandy Bachman, the CIA Chief of Station in Pakistan.

Like Carrie Mathison, the show's female lead played by Claire Danes, Sandy is depicted as a rising star at the agency.

The fourth season will premiere this fall, transporting viewers to a new setting in Turkey. Carrie has accepted a post in Istanbul, where she now heads up of one of the most dangerous CIA stations in the Middle East. Production is scheduled to begin this month in Cape Town, South Africa.

Landing Stoll is a significant win for Showtime, as the actor has been particularly in demand lately among TV and film producers alike.

Stoll will return to the silver screen on September 1 in the thriller Dark Places, co-starring with Charlize Theron and Chloe Moretz. The actor will also join Johnny Depp and Benedict Cumberbatch in Black Mass, due for release by the end of this year.

In spite of his success on the big screen, the actor is not leaving TV behind. Before debuting in his role on Homeland, he will be seen in Guillermo del Toro's new vampire series The Strain, which premieres July 13 on FX. AFP

Bill Paxton has plenty to say

Edge of Tomorrow.

Actor rambles happily about new sci-fi flick, his latest project, and that infamous Aliens line

Metro World News in Hollywood

The first thing you learn when you talk to Bill Paxton is that the man likes to talk. When they connect us on the phone, he's already in mid-sentence, using my name as a jumping-off point to talk about Australian folk legend Ned Kelly. I learned quickly it's best to just let the Edge of Tomorrow star go.

What he's saying when the phone connects:

The wild colonial boy! Ned Kelly, Ned Kelly, line one! Get out of here, you're the wild colonial boy!

Why we're not speaking in person:

We're talking from Durango, Mexico — old Mexico. The land time forgot. This is a really old, old town, and I didn't realize much about it aside from the fact that it was a famous movie town for John Wayne and Sam Peckinpah in days of yore. Yo, what's up? My .45-calibre pistol! (laughs). It's a great, old historic Spanish town, and we're all staying here. We just started shooting Texas Rising, a new miniseries for History. It's kind of their first big follow-up to *Hatfields and McCoy*s. It's the same producers, but this time we're helmed by the great Roland Joffe.

On the film coming out on the 70th anniversary of the D-Day invasion:

Weirdly enough, I think that fell on a coincidence. It's just one of those things. When they're picking those dates, they're not picking them for historical significance. They pick them for maximum commercial impact. With X-Men and Godzilla on one side and Guardians of the Galaxy on the other, you've got to get in when you can. I think the reason Warner Bros. is downplaying that is out of respect. This has a very similar kind of set-up, but I think they didn't want to exploit that fact. You've got this alien horde who have taken Europe, much like the blitzkrieg of the Nazis, and now the Allies — or the Federation, I forget what the hell we're called — we're spearheading a counter-invasion out of England, which of course means Normandy. I could see my character, who's a career soldier and steeped in military history, kind of getting off on the fact that tomorrow we're invading France again. That wasn't lost on me and Tom [Cruise] while we were shooting it, but it just happened to fall on that date.

On the legacy of his "Game over, man, game over!" line from Aliens:

Hell, that's one I'll never live down. It's certainly a beloved character, and it's amazing to think that after all this time that each generation discovers Aliens and embraces it. It's nice when you can satisfy the hardest critic of all, and that's time.

Doug Liman. Director says Warner Bros. has the guts to make original films

Edge of Tomorrow director Doug Liman. GETTY IMAGES

Eighteen years after his Swingers debut, Bourne Identity and Mr. and Mrs. Smith director Doug Liman is back for another inventive action romp with Edge of Tomorrow, starring Tom Cruise as a cowardly soldier stuck fighting an alien invasion again and again in a Groundhog Day-like loop. We grabbed Liman for a quick chat, where it quickly became clear he has no interest in holding his tongue — even if it means calling out former bosses.

I imagine the press tour experience can have a lot of parallels to this movie.

When you do press for a movie like Edge of Tomorrow, people are always asking you, "If you could go back and change any day, what would you change?" You know, lame questions like that. Maybe they're not lame, but when you hear it over and over again, you start to have a little of the experience Tom's character is having.

This feels refreshingly original for a studio film coming out during the summer.

It's hard to release original movies, right? You have to educate an audience as to what Edge of Tomorrow is. You don't have to educate them about what X-Men is or what Bourne 5 is. It's why basically only Warner Bros. is making these kinds of original movies. They have the guts to bet on a filmmaker — to bet on Alfonso Cuarón with Gravity, bet on [Christopher] Nolan with Inception. It gives me a huge amount of respect for Warner Bros. I'm not the guy who's normally complimenting a studio, but they were hugely supportive along every step of the way, whereas on the Bourne Identity, all Universal was trying to do was make the film into a generic movie that felt like other spy movies they had seen. Warner Bros., they actually want to make original movies. They themselves want to be proud of the movies they make.

Darcy Oake's finale will be risky business

When doves fly.

Winnipeg magician plans to up the ante for his final act on Britain's Got Talent

Winnipeg magician Darcy Oake says he's planning "a very dangerous piece" for Saturday's finale of Britain's Got Talent as he competes for the top prize.

"The way we're doing it, it's risky — big time," the 26-year-old said this week in a telephone interview from London. "But I feel like each piece needs to be bigger than the last one, and this is kind of the only way to close out the show for me."

The son of Hockey Night in Canada broadcaster Scott Oake is one of 10 finalists vying for the prize of about $456,000. Newly announced wild card contender Jon Clegg will also be competing during Saturday's live finale, which will see the voting public in the U.K. decide the winner.

Oake wouldn't reveal what his final trick will be, noting "it's got to be a surprise," but he said it's a new presentation of something he's done a handful of times. (One of his most dangerous tricks has seen him suspended by his feet trying to get out of a straight jacket before a bear trap hanging from a burning rope above him becomes loose.)

A specialist in sleight-of-hand and illusions, Oake said he knew he wanted to be a magician as a kid after his dad fooled him during a card-trick attempt.

"He got me to pick a card, I picked it, put it back in the pack, he shuffled the pack, pulled one out and said, 'This was your card,' and it was my card. I begged him to tell me how he did it for, like, a month and he wouldn't. And then I found out it was just a complete accident."

He first learned his craft from library books and practised at birthday parties before gradually moving on to bigger venues, headlining shows around Canada and the U.S.

But he became "artistically unsatisfied" and wanted to take

Darcy Oake, magician on his final performance on Britain's Got Talent his act to the next level, and that's why he tried out for Britain's Got Talent, the hit talent show competition that has discovered the likes of singers Paul Potts and Susan Boyle.

His first performance — in which he pulled off jaw-dropping illusions with doves — wowed the audience as well as judges Simon Cowell, Amanda Holden, Alesha Dixon and David Walliams. (A YouTube clip of the performance has garnered over 25 million views.)

Cowell told him he's "the best magician" they've ever had on the show, called him a "star" and praised him for presenting magic in a non-corny way.

"I put a lot of effort into presenting (magic) in a non-cheesy way, and when Simon Cowell made those comments specifically saying it wasn't corny, that was a huge compliment for me," said Oake.

"There's definitely a stigma with being a magician. People immediately either assume you do kids' parties, or when you say 'magician' they immediately think 'musician' and they ask you what instrument you play. When you say you do magic, people are like, 'What? You're a weirdo.'"

His Britain's Got Talent competition includes electric violinist Lettice Rowbotham, opera singer Lucy Kay and dance act Yanis Marshall, Arnaud and Mehdi.

He said he's looking at it as a competition against himself, not his competitors, and he's not sure what he would do with the prize money if he won.

"It's not about the money for me at all. It's about coming here and presenting the craft and the art form in a respectable way and in a way that's seen as something different." THE CANADIAN PRESS

In post-breakup, Mayer becomes muse to Katy Perry

At this point, we'll soon be able to put out a compilation album of songs written about John Mayer. His most recent ex, Katy Perry, tells Cosmopolitan that fans shouldn't be surprised to hear some tunes on forthcoming albums inspired by their breakup. "There's no bad blood, but I'm sure there will be inspired songs," she tells the magazine.

Taylor Swift, another of Mayer's exes, also penned a tune or two about the singer.

Mayer, for his part, isn't too worried about the output. "I have super-strength for gang-ups," he tells TMZ. "I'm fine. That's what you're supposed to do, man. You're supposed to write songs. You're just not supposed to tell everybody you're doing it."

MELINDA TAUB

Metro World News in New York City

50 Cent is sure living life to the fullest this summer. First he throws the worst first pitch ever at a Mets game. Then he has a rival robbed onstage. Now he says he masturbated so much he hurt his bones.

No, not that bone. Fiddy is blaming that dismal first pitch on a sort of repetitive stress injury. In his Reddit AMA Tuesday, he said, "I have a skeletal muscle injury from excessive masturbation so take it easy lol."

Will do! Then again, most of us do not have to pitch at Major League baseball games, so we are free to abuse ourselves as extravagantly as we choose, no matter how fraught with peril our technique may be.

In that same AMA, 50 Cent also said he used to bench press 405 pounds, so perhaps the injury had other causes. He also showed his nerdy side: When asked what would be his dream movie role, he replied, "One of the Marvel franchise. Or Star Wars."

Just be careful how many times you swing the light sabre.

Net those customers.

Fashion designers are turning to crowdfunding to boost brand buzz, profile and bottom line

Dylan Uscher works mainly with independent boutiques to feature his creations, but the designer hopes that crowdfunding will help elevate his label from budding brand to booming success.

The self-taught American designer recently moved back to Boston after eight years in Toronto where he launched Dylanium Knits in 2010.

Uscher has partnered with Luevo — a Canadian crowdfunding platform for designers — to help pre-sell his fall collection of knitwear inspired by Florentine architecture. His online campaign ends June 15.

"It's always a struggle when you're an independent business owner because you have to work really hard to get the very little that you have," Uscher said. "This just seemed like a really great outlet to try and get some new sales."

All items in his collection featured on Luevo are 15 per cent less than the suggested retail price.

And Uscher will only produce them if the products reach designated targets among customers who've pledged to purchase the designs.

THIS EXTER SLOUCH HAT IN SILVER FROM DYLANIUM KNITS RETAILS FOR $105 BUT IS CURRENTLY SELLING ON LUEVO FOR $89.

Sunny Fong recently reached out to online donors to expand his VAWK label. In a video on his Indiegogo fundraising page, Fong appealed for help to stage his World MasterCard Fashion Week runway show in Toronto in March as well as aid to launch his label's first online store. which include scarves, a slouch hat and cape.

"Instead of using hypothetical market research or numbers that someone else has designed, you can put your own products out there and really test ... what products are going to work and what colours work and what doesn't," Uscher said.

"I think that's the really interesting way to approach it without having to go through all of the process of producing the items yourself and hoping that they sell."

Luevo co-founder Ana Caracaleanu said the site launched with its first designers in March and plans to

The pros and cons of the crowdsourcing concept

Darren Meister, an associate professor of business at Western University in London, Ont., said he thinks a bigger risk from a fashion perspective is the ability to see the designs — and potential interest from consumers — posted online for all to see. That includes major retailers who may jump on creating their own versions.

• Yet Meister said he also sees the possibility of rewards for emerging designers using the platform to make their mark, and some sales in the process.

• What the crowdfunding model allows you is to try a more things, get more immediate feedback and improve your designs, he said. "If I'm a designer and I put up 20 designs and I see these three are the ones that are catching on, I'm probably going to focus on those three."

keep the number of labels featured in their "curated marketplace" to under 10 for now, with campaigns of 30 to 45 days.

Luevo takes a 15 per cent commission from successfully funded projects but also works to support designers in other ways such as editing news releases and producing written content, she added.

"For the designers, the value that we bring is our technology to crowdsource items that are not yet produced. They don't have to pull the inventory," Caracaleanu said. "They could use us as a step in growing their businesses or scaling up, and then taking their productions to a larger site where they may be requested to have ... the inventory to put their items there."

Christopher Charlesworth is co-founder of HiveWire, a crowdfunding and crowdsourcing solutions provider. He isn't surprised to see designers pursuing crowdfunding as capital- and buzz-building strategy.

"We think there's a really unique opportunity for not only startup entrepreneurs but specifically for fashion designers because they can present truly unique wares that are literally unavailable quite often in any other place."

"For many startup designers, they don't have access to the traditional distribution channels. Crowdfunding allows them to connect directly with a unique audience that is potentially interested in their goods."

The platform also offers the opportunity to take risks with designs they might not be able to produce when dealing with a mainstream chain, Charlesworth noted.

All decked out for summer

Sunny makeover. A DIY weekend transformed a tired deck into a bright, summertime retreat

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

The 40-year-old deck at the back of my house was in desperate need of some freshening up. Structurally it was sound, but the sun-bleached wood was in desperate need of some style inspiration. My inspiration came from sun-filled Miami, where the outdoor spaces are white, bright and accessorized with a pop of colour.

With the help of two friends I transformed an unused space into an outdoor entertaining area that works both day and night.

Here's some inspiration, and the products, that helped me get the look.

BEFORE: This deck was in serious need of some TLS (tender loving style).

Paint the wood white

A solid wood stain (similar to a paint) was applied not only to brighten the outdoor space but also to protect the wood from drying out further. I chose a cool, off-white putty colour to help calm the eye on a bright day. Pure white can sometimes be too glaring and often looks cheap. TimberCare Solid Colour Wood Stain, Cement Gray, $55, Para.com

It's easy being green

I'm not much of a gardener, so the simplest way to get a shot of green on the deck was to use artificial grass. Delivered as a roll, it lays flat on the existing deck, can be vacuumed, cleaned with a garden hose, is fade-resistant and stays cool on the sunniest of days. UZ-ITE Green Grass Shag Carpet, $19/yard HomeDepot.ca

AFTER: Following a quick weekend of painting and laying some new flooring, the old tired patio was ready for summer. The Dimplex Outdoor Fireplace (now discontinued) was purchased at a yard sale and creates a much-needed focal point while offering the look of an outdoor fire when entertaining at night. ALL PHOTOS CONTRIBUTED

A real shady deal

No trees by my deck means the need for shade when entertaining. One day, a retractable awning (a dream) will get installed. Until then, a super-chic, free-standing umbrella will keep things cool. Karloso Umbrella, $90, IKEA.ca

Cushion a blue streak

For a cool-to-touch Miami feeling, I kept all the furnishings light in tone and accessorized with hits of blue and green. Zuo Modern Maclear Outdoor Sofa, $1,450, Lowes.ca

Turf the mower and go wild

Allowing a lawn to naturalize rather than constantly maintaining a traditional turf lawn is an alternative some experts recommend. CHRISTIAN BARNARD LAND STUDIOS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Let nature have its way with your lawn. Wildflowers, native species are alternatives to traditional grass turf

It's the time of year when homeowners devote countless hours to keeping their lawns lush and green only to have watering restrictions imposed by many municipalities later in the season — causing lawns to dry out and even turn brown.

All that time and labour invested in keeping a lawn green with sometimes a disappointing outcome is leading many homeowners to consider alternatives.

Christian Barnard, owner of Victoria's Christian Barnard Land Studio, says many of his clients are beginning to ask him about options other than traditional turf.

Biodiversity

"I think a lot of the clients I have now are looking for something that is more biodiverse, because they equate turf with high resource input," says Barnard. "When homeowners think of turf, they think of lawn mowers and Weed Eaters, and so they should to a certain degree." One of his clients trained dogs in her 15-by-15-metre plot of grass. In her case turf was never going to be a long-lasting or easy-care option, and he recommended artificial or synthetic turf.

Synthetic turf

"Synthetic turf has come a long, long way, and it is amazing how real it can look. But if I had my way I tend to steer a lot of my clients into a more biodiverse option for turf," he says.

Wild flowers

Barnard recommends to a lot of clients to let their turf lawns naturalize, which means reducing the mowing and trimming, and allowing native wildflowers to return. He also uses a wildflower seed mix instead of turf.

Embrace weeds

With 171 municipalities across Canada, and all of Ontario and Quebec, banning pesticide and herbicide use, a certified horticulturalist says homeowners have to develop a tolerance for weeds in their lawns.

"People are looking at their lawns and what was the status quo and realizing they can't have the green weed-free lawn anymore, and looking for alternatives," says Jason Erb, owner of Victoria's The Gardeners of Oliphant.

Garden beds

The easiest alternative for homeowners looking to move away from turf is to reduce the overall amount. Erb says this can be done by increasing the size of garden beds to cut down on the amount of lawn.

Hardscaping

Introducing hardscaping like patios and pathways is another option for reducing lawn space, and Erb says pathways can add flow to a backyard.

Grow edibles

Erb encourages homeowners to carve out segments of a large turf lawn to create raised beds and plant fruit trees and even berry bushes.

MAKE YOUR SPRING EXTRA GREEN

DONATE CLOTHES, HOUSEHOLD ITEMS AT VALUE VILLAGE

Are you looking for more ways to contribute positively to the environment in your everyday life? Shop second-hand.

The clothing you wear and give away can make a big impact on the environment. On average, each North American throws away more than 30 kilograms (68 pounds) of clothing and textiles each year.

The good news is that nearly 100 per cent of that is reusable or recyclable. So this season while you are combing through your closet, packing away your sweaters and getting out those shorts and T-shirts, make your spring extra green by donating your clothes and household items at Value Village.

"Donating the clothes you don't need anymore is a simple, easy way for anyone to go green in their everyday lives," says Tony Shumpert, vice-president of recycling operations for Value Village. "It might seem like a small contribution, but over time one person can make a really big difference."

Value Village is one of the largest recyclers of used clothing in the world, keeping more than 294,000 metric tonnes (approximately 650 million pounds — that's the size of two cruise ships) of quality goods from landfills by selling reusable items in-store and responsibly recycling items unsuitable for resale.

CONTRIBUTED

Last year, Value Village repurposed 329 million tops, 59 million pairs of shoes, 114 million pairs of pants and 28 million coats.

Of course, second-hand shoppers are just as important as donors. Visiting your local thrift store is a great way to find good quality, one-of-a-kind items for excellent prices. Shoppers can look good and go green at the same time.

"Value Village works with community

SUPPORTING COMMUNITIES

Make room for your fresh new finds by cleaning out the old clothes you don't wear anymore. Value Village pays local non-profits every time you donate, helping to support their programs and services within the community.

"Our goal at Value Village is to support our communities across Canada," says Tony Shumpert, vice-president of recycling operations for Value Village. "We consider community investment an essential component of our business."

Over the past 10 years, Value Village has purchased more than $1.5 billion of goods from its partners, turning otherwise unused items into sustainable funding that supports the non-profit's vital community programs and services.

Helping out the community — now that's truly stylish.

partners like Big Brothers Big Sisters and the Canadian Diabetes Association to keep goods out of landfills and give pre-loved clothing a brand new life," Shumpert says. "You never know what treasures you'll find — thrift shopping makes recycling fun."

Dig through fashion gold mines

Unique style is a coveted quality. This is true now more than ever thanks to street style blogs like the Sartorialist, Street Peeper, Face Hunter, and many others.

"Second-hand shopping has become the fashionista's secret weapon," says Tony Shumpert, vice-president of recycling operations for Value Village. "You never know what you're going to find there, and sometimes it's a gold mine."

Here's how to find your style at Value Village:

LOOK FOR HIGH-QUALITY MATERIALS

The fabrics you choose will make a difference in the longevity of your garments. Keep your eyes open for high-quality textiles like silk or wool. These materials wear well, last a long time and never go out of style. Value Village purposely selects high-quality clothing, and puts more than 5,000 to 10,000 new items out every day.

CHECK THE LABEL

Chanel, Nike, Lululemon, Aritzia brands such as Wilfred and TNA — high-quality brand names are frequent finds at Value Village. As you are sifting through the racks, watch the labels. You will find items for $10 that would have originally retailed for hundreds.

TRY IT ON

At Value Village, clothing is arranged by size so you can easily find the best fit for you, but since every item is different, make sure to try it on to find out how it fits.

KNOW WHEN TO SAY NO

Sometimes a clothing item just isn't for you. If it's not quite right, don't buy it. Or if you bought it and you are having second thoughts, bring it back. Value Village welcomes buyers to exchange their purchases within seven days so you can save your pocket money for items that feel just right.

CONSIDER GETTING IT TAILORED

If you find a $5 jacket in just the right shade of blue, but it doesn't quite fit, consider getting it altered at a tailor. It will still cost far less than it would new, and you will have a great piece that will last you for years.

Cookbook of the Week

The B.C. coast comes to your home

Sophisticated Bohemian (Sobo) has gone from food truck to destination restaurant in Tofino, B.C. to a cookbook. Lisa Ahier (the restaurant's chef and owner) has teamed up with Andrew Morrison (a food writer) for a release that focuses on locally sourced, seasonally inspired ingredients — just like the restaurant that inspired it. Among the 100 recipes included are: Crab and Goat Cheese Wontons, BBQ Bison Flank Steak, Thai Chicken in Roti, Mascarpone Cheesecake and more. METRO

Lunch or dinner. Nothing screams summer more than fresh fruit, and this recipe takes nature's and mixes it with crispy fish

"I've always adjusted this recipe according to what fish is readily available. In New York, I used snapper, and in Texas, I used bass," writes Lisa Ahier in her book The Sobo Cookbook.

"Here in B.C., salmon and halibut have become my all-time favourites. This recipe was featured in The Best American Recipes 2000, edited by Fran McCullough and Suzanne Hamlin, and in The Gourmet Cookbook, edited by Ruth Reichl."

1. Prepare the fresh fruit salsa.

2. Cut the salmon and halibut into 1-inch cubes and season with salt.

3. Heat the oil in a large frying pan over medium-high heat. Add the onion and sauté for 1 minute. Add the fish and fry for about 3 minutes, until just cooked. Add the chipotle chilies and sauté for 2 or 3 more minutes. Remove from the heat.

4. Fill the taco shells halfway with the fish mixture, then top with the salsa. Serve immediately, two tacos per person.

Fresh Fruit Salsa

This salsa should reflect the season, so don't be a slave to the recipe. I mix it up all the time, combining fruits like peaches and blueberries with watermelon, or pineapple with avocado. Buy what's fresh.

1. Combine all ingredients and refrigerate until ready to use. This salsa will stand up for about 24 hours, after which time the fruit begins to break down.

Ingredients

- Fresh Fruit Salsa (see below)
- 1 lb wild salmon, boneless and skinless
- 1 lb halibut, boneless and skinless
- 1 tbsp salt
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 cup small-diced red onion (about 1 onion)
- 1/2 cup puréed canned chipotle

- chilies in adobo sauce
- 16 crispy hard taco shells

Fresh Fruit Salsa

- 4 kiwi fruits, diced small
- 1/2 pineapple, diced
- 1 mango, diced small
- 1 small papaya, diced small
- 2 avocados, diced small
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh cilantro

Condiment. Habanero Whisky BBQ Sauce

This recipe makes eight cups. JEREMY KORESKI

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup canola oil
- 1 medium yellow onion, diced small
- 1 jalapeno pepper, seeded and diced small
- 1 red bell pepper, diced small
- 1 green bell pepper, diced small
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tbsp dry mustard
- 1 1/2 tbsp salt (or to taste)
- 1 tbsp ground cumin
- 1/4 cup whisky or bourbon
- 4 cups ketchup
- 1 cup apple cider vinegar
- 3/4 cup Dijon mustard
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup molasses
- 1 tsp ground dried habanero chili powder

1. Heat the oil in a medium-sized, heavy-bottomed pot over medium heat. Sauté the onion, jalapeno and bell peppers for 20 minutes or until tender, gently stirring with a wooden spoon to prevent burning. Add the garlic, dry mustard, salt and cumin and cook for an additional 2 minutes.

2. Add the whisky and let it evaporate for 1 minute. Add the ketchup, cider vinegar, Dijon, brown sugar, molasses and chili powder and simmer on low heat for 1 hour, stirring frequently to avoid burning.

3. Remove from heat and allow to cool to room temperature.

Simon closes book on historic career

The most prolific receiver in CFL history is calling it a career.

Slotback Geroy Simon announced his retirement Wednesday after 15 seasons.

The 38-year-old native of Johnstown, Pa., played 12 years with the B.C. Lions but finished his career with Saskatchewan, helping the Roughriders win the Grey Cup last year. It was his third championship.

Simon spent his first two CFL seasons with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers and retires as the league's all-time leader in catches (1,029) and yards (16,352).

Sterling agrees to sell Clippers, attorney says

Los Angeles Clippers owner Donald Sterling agreed Wednesday to sign off on selling the team to former Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer for what would be a record $2 billion, according to his attorney.

Sterling "has made an agreement with the NBA to resolve all their differences," and as co-owner has given his consent to a deal that was negotiated by his wife, Shelly Sterling, to sell the team, said attorney Maxwell Blecher.

Donald Sterling filed a $1-billion suit against the NBA in federal court last week alleging the league violated his constitutional rights but Blecher said the suit will be dismissed.

front and the forward scored high to the stick side.

After going down 2-0 early, the Kings tied it up in the second period and came on like a freight train in the third period — outshooting

New York 20-3. But the Rangers threatened late in a wild ending to regulation time.

New York goalie Henrik Lundqvist and the Kings' Jonathan Quick both lived up to their reputations on the night, with Quick busy early and Lundqvist late in an end-to-end game.

The Rangers managed 25 shots in regulation time. The shots were 2-2 in OT.

Game 2 goes Saturday at the Staples Center with advantage Los Angeles.

Teams winning Game 1 have gone on to claim the Cup 77 per cent of the time (57 of 74 series) since the final went to a best-of-seven format in 1939.

Benoit Pouliot and Carl Hagelin scored for the Rangers before a crowd of 18,399, the Kings' 118th straight sell-out.

Kyle Clifford and Drew Doughty scored for Los Angeles, which trailed 2-0 in the first period.

The Kings are looking to win their second Cup in three seasons while the Rangers are after their first championship in 20 years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

World Cup. Ronaldo hobbling ahead of Brazil

Portugal says forward Cristiano Ronaldo has tendinitis in his left leg to go with a left leg muscle injury as the team prepares for its World Cup opener on June 16 against Germany.

The Portuguese Football Federation also says in a medical report that Pepe, midfielder Raul Meireles and goalkeeper Beto all trained separately on Tuesday as they recover from injuries.

Ronaldo, the world player of the year, helped Real Madrid win the Champions League last month despite being hampered by leg injuries late in the season. Portugal is in the U.S., where it will play Mexico Friday and Ireland next week in friendlies before heading to Brazil. At the World Cup, Portugal also plays the United States and Ghana in Group G.

On Wednesday

Adam Lind doubled twice to drive in three runs and Melky Cabrera added a homer and three hits, lifting the Toronto Blue Jays to an 8-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Wednesday night.

Lind's two-run double off Rick Porcello (8-3) in the sixth put Toronto ahead 3-2, and Aaron Loup got out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the bottom of the inning in relief of R.A. Dickey (6-4).

The AL East-leading Blue Jays added three runs in the eighth and two in the ninth in winning for the 18th time in 22 games.

Miguel Cabrera and Ian Kinsler homered for Detroit, but Kinsler also left the bases loaded twice. The AL Central-leading Tigers left 11 runners on base in their fourth straight loss. Detroit has dropped 12 of 16.

Jose Bautista also had three hits for Toronto, including a two-run double in the ninth.

Melky Cabrera opened the scoring in the first with a solo shot, but Miguel Cabrera answered in the bottom half with his 11th homer of the year. Kinsler's home run in the third put the Tigers ahead 2-1.

Porcello seemed to be cruising along, but he allowed a two-out double to Melky Cabrera in the sixth, followed by a walk to Bautista. Lind then hit a drive over Austin Jackson's head in Comerica Park's cavernous centre field, scoring both runners to put the Blue Jays ahead.

Dickey almost gave the lead right back, allowing a single in between two walks. But with the bases loaded, Loup came on and struck out pinch-hitter J.D. Martinez before getting Rajai Davis and Kinsler on foul popups.

Dickey allowed two runs and seven hits in five-plus innings, walking four and striking out four. Loup pitched two scoreless innings in relief.

Porcello allowed three runs and six hits in seven innings.

Toronto padded its lead in the eighth. Cabrera hit an RBI single and Lind added a run-scoring double in that inning. By the time the game ended, it seemed there were as many Blue Jays fans left at the ballpark as Tigers fans.

Tigers shortstop Eugenio Suarez made his major-league debut after being called up from the minors before the game. He entered as a substitute in the seventh, and his first plate appearance was eventful.

With men on first and second in the eighth, he hit a grounder to third. Brett Lawrie fielded it and stepped on third for a force, but his throw to first hit Suarez around the upper back for an error, leaving runners at second and third. The Tigers left them on base too.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

What happens today may convince you that you have allowed yourself to be lulled into a false sense of security but even if it's true it is no big deal. You're smart enough to handle whatever fate sends your way.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Why are you trying to do everything the hard way? Not only is it unnecessary but it could also be self-defeating. Be who you are, not who you think others want you to be.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

A challenge will confront you today but you will overcome it with ease. Take action quickly and don't doubt for a moment that you will succeed. Good things are coming your way.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

It is important that you think things through carefully today. There is a danger that you will act hastily and regret it later, so slow down, think about what it is you want to do and work slowly towards that goal.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Something will happen today to make you wonder if you've been too hasty in reaching certain conclusions. Just because some people have a way of life that is radically different to your own does not make them bad.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

It may feel as if you're under the thumb at home and work, but there is no point getting stressed about it. Wait for the cosmic outlook to change, which it should do any day.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You're in an adventurous mood but this may not be the best time to venture into areas you don't know about. Wait until the full moon on the 13th has come and gone before moving out of your comfort zone.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Stay calm and keep telling yourself that everything will turn out right in the end. Above all don't allow yourself to get worked up about money matters. There is no reason at all to fear the worst.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Things may get bumpy over the next day or two but if you sit tight the turbulence will pass. If others want to throw tantrums that's up to them. You are under no obligation to follow their example.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Current influences highlight the need to be efficient, to get the most from yourself for the least input of time and energy. Pace yourself and look for ways to get from A to B simply.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

A clash of egos could get rather heated over the next 24 hours, but the results should be positive. Hopefully it will get you thinking in new and more profitable directions.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Your world will be rocked by what happens over the next few days but later you will look back and realize it was all for the best. Ultimately all change is good for you. SALLY BROMPTON
